

September, 2009

Dan's a happy guy, Bucharest-based UX buff and experienced online architect in both entrepreneurial and corporate environments, human automaton, good juju builder, coffee drinker, living the dream.

Many would vouch for he's smart, witty, clever, charming and sociable. Some would argue he's a prominent online industry figure in his country. Some say that he's a pro of global scale, but they must not be taken serious.

He likes to carry a set of lacquer-free renewable cal-cedar wood casing, recyclable Aluminum ferrule enviro-green degradable eraser and certified non-toxic imprint inks pencils and a pack of Field Notes 48 page graph paper memo books around to draw beautiful interfaces for down to earth mobile & web apps. Sometimes he draws new home appliances that never make it into production.

I agree with all of the above. Please hire him.

Kindest,

Dan Berte